Catalog 2020

www.downtownbookworks.com

Dear Book Lovers,

I started Downtown Bookworks in 2010 with a mission to keep children engaged in reading and in the world around them. I wanted to publish books that felt good in small hands and invited interaction, books that parents would look forward to reading to their kids.

The list reflects the passions of my family and my team: nature and science, art and design, social justice and feminism—and super heroes!

Each title in this catalog started as the germ of an idea that was nurtured with a deep love of words, art, and design—and launched into the world with the hope that children and their grownups would discover and enjoy it.

I hope our carefully curated list resonates with you, too, in some way. Maybe you will be knocked off your feet by the gorgeous illustrations in Every Tree Has a Story (p. 13); or your neighborhood is brimming with little citizens of the world who need No! My First Book of Protest (p. 10); or you just know that Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Puberty—And Shouldn't Be Googling (p. 3) can mean the end of awkward conversations for tween boys.

I hope that together, we can seed the world with lots of little book lovers who grow into the next generation of thinkers.

Gratefully yours,

Julie Merberg

Super Heroes Have Feelings Too!

by Morris Katz

Super heroes seem pretty stoic—ahem, Batman—but they actually feel a range of emotions just like everybody else. Swimming in the water makes Aquaman feel calm. Being a great acrobat makes Batgirl proud. Little ones are invited to talk about what makes them feel excited, angry, happy, and more along with their favorite heroes. Super Heroes Have Feelings Too provides a fun, easy way to explore emotions with babies, toddlers, and preschoolers.

How to Think Like Frank Lloyd Wright

by Catherine Teegarden, edited by the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation

Frank Lloyd Wright looked to nature for inspiration. He believed it was "necessary to learn from trees, flowers, shells—objects which contain truths of form following function." How to Think Like Frank Lloyd Wright takes these lessons to heart and includes practical exercises that invite the reader to create original patterns, designs, drawings, structures, and more. Using items found in nature—such as leaves, insects, seashells—and looking at Wright's own sketches, abstractions, and finished works, this book offers a template for aspiring artists and architects to emulate his creative process.

Projects include:

- Designing a stained glass window
- Sketching houses for different habitats
- Creating graphics inspired by nature

This unique exploration of some of Frank Lloyd Wright's most famous works and the methodology behind them is more than a guided sketch book—it is the perfect tool to spark the imagination of the next generation of visionaries.
